(Shanghai Recorder, May 17, 1867.) We are put in possession of the fourth number of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan." In saying that the presen number equals in interest and importance its predecessors, we have already said great deal in its favour. Our knowledge of these countries has hitherto been scattered, so ill-arranged, entombed as i were, in a series of works, in different lan guages, and spreading in point of time, over the last two centuries, that some means of separating what is really new, from what has possibly been over and over again described is much to be desired * * As a medium of latercommunication on these and many other subjects of interest to those connected with the far East, we must hall the appearance of "Notes and Queries." * * We need only add that the periodical is of convenient size, is carefully edited by Mr N. B. Dennys, and is published at the low price of $4 per anumn; and having said this, we trust that " Notes and Queries on China and Japan " will meet with that success which so creditable a production deserves at the hands of those interested in Asiatic researches.

No doubt the and for the greater part of the year, safe one also, but were its natural advantages greater than they are, the necessity for landing wharves would still exist. The present system of unloading ships is attended with enormous disadvantages, At best the process is tedious, but when the harbor is rough, it is difficult, if not dispossible, to unload at all, so that it has not unfrequently happened that vessels have been unable fully to discharge for some weeks, instead of doing so in so many days, as might be the case, were proper conveniences for the purpose offorded. The time thus wasted, irrespec-

We are glad however to find that a step in the right direction has at length been taken. A company it appears is now being formed for the construction of a landing pier or wharf, which will enable ships to discharge their cargoes speedily and with comparative immunity from plunder. It is to consist of a Pier fifty feet broad, extend ing from the Praya into the harbor for about 500 feet, a di tance which considerable on paper, but which owing to the harbor being at that point nearly two miles broad, is really but a triffing encroachment, so that no possible inconvenience to navigation can arise from it As however a pier running so far out from the mainland might occasionally prove inconvenient to small craft, it is intended to leave an opening for sampans to pass and repass. This Pier will be met at the extremity by a transverse Pier of the like breadth and 180 feet long, so that three ships of the largest size, or more vessels of lighter tonnage, can be alongside and load or unload at the same time. In connection with these wharves, there will be erected on the site referred to an extensive range of offices and godowns, so that merchandize when unshipped can be at once stored. Upon an incident reported to have taken of the libellous atmosphere which is generally prevalent, or rather the keen scent for the same, the Friend has the following characteristic remarks :-

The town has been all agog the last two or three days, consequent on a report that Counsellor Barnard had threatened to horsewhip the Editor of the Recorder if he did not publish in his paper a statement the effect that he (Barnard) was not the go far towards recommending it as the party alluded to in a ridiculous story told by our contemporary of one person having said to another "I have just come from so and so's tiffin," to which the other replied " And so have I, but I did not see you there." That Mr Barnard did go to the Recorder office for the purpose of inducing the Editor to publish what he wished, there is no doubt, for at the hour, 2 P.M. Wednesday, which we were told was! fixed for the battle, we sent a reporter to take notes, and he says that he distinctly heard Mr Barnard tell Mr Dulcken unless he die what was requested in the next day's paper he would call again, and try if he could not give him the soundest thrashing he ever had. And perhaps, though we have not information on the subject, Mr Barnard's attempt, 'ere this, has been made Now we put it to the community at large if this style of thing, on the part of s Barrister of all others, is not shocking Does it not show that society here is fast verging on the anarchical? The Passing Bell was so named because was tolled when an one passed from this Hence it was sometimes called the Soul Bell, and was rung that those who heard it might pray for the soul of the dying person. The number of times of tolling depended upon the rank of the per-It is especially mentioned in the account of the last moments of Lady Kutharine Grev, who died a prisoner in the Tower, in 1567. The tolling of the "Passing Boll" continued as late as Charles II.'s time. In olden times bells were used for the smaller bell yielding the lower note, many superstitious purposes. The oustom of the funeral knell first arose in the darking Bell. The most ancient bells and and having evidently originated in cymbals sound of it was supposed to put demons to uct superior to the English, that long-and only two for a woman. The Sanctus, or Saint's Bell, was thus called because rung when the priest came to the words of the mass "Sancte, sancte, Deus Sabaoth," that all persons who were absent might fall on their knees n reverence of the holy office going on in the churches. It was usually a small rung by hand similar to those in use in the Roman Catholic churches, but it was frequently place where it might be heard farthest in a lan tern at the springing of the steeple, or in surret at the augle of the tower, or for the convenience of being more easily rung within a cote or turnet between the churc and the chancel, the rope in this situation falling down into the choir not far from the alter. Several of these turrets, and some with the bells in them are still seen in our country churches, and in several churches in Somersetablire the Sanctus Bell is stil rung at the commencement of the service. It is said that among the Greeks, bells began to be disused after the taking Constantinople by the Turks, as the la ter orbade the use of bells lest their sound should disturb the renose of souls. Bordeaux, also, we hear of the peop being deprived of their bells on account chellion, and when offered them again they refused to have them, having he ease and conveniency of being freed from the constant din and jangling

The largest bells in the world are generally stationary bells, used only for clocks to strike upon, or at the most are occasimally awang frame high, or up to the porizontal position, whereas bells rung in peal like our church bells, are swun ompletely up or raised and se with the mouth upwards, when the ringers sto between the reals No other nation in the world ring their bells in this way, but the only half raise them and ring their chime by the easier and less effective plan filling, wherein the bell swings just enough to make the clapper strike it. The out objection to our mode of ringing our bells, is not the hard work, as it is a most healthy exercise, but when the bells are very large and the tower is weak, either from decay if it is old, or poverty of coustruction if it is modern, the horizontal thrust of the bells is too much for it to bear. Not that it is not safe to ring the bella, because the tower sways with them. Stone, like everything else, is clastic to certain extent, and many a tower has gone on vibrating for centuries without being the worse for it. The largest bell rung in a peal in England, and probably in the world, is tenor in the peal at Exeter, which weigh 67 cwt. The peal of bells at the Exeter Cathedral is the largest peal of bells it England, and they are, of course, very old There are ten bells in the peal, and though the earliest date of re-casting the bells appears in the chapter book dated Septem-28, 1689, the tenor bell B bears the name of Grandison inscribed upon it, au as Grandison was Bishop of Exeter from 1327 to 1369, it is most probable the bel was put up about his time, and inscribe with his name, as it was the ancient custon to name the bells either in honor of some

The eighth bell. call ed the "old nine o'clock," was probably the Curfew bell rnng in olden times at eight or nine in the evening. The seventh bell bears the name of "Cobthorne." and the sixth bell is called the "Doom bell.". Though I have not been able to discover sound and the depth of their notes, and the exact origin of the name, it was pro hably rung at the time of executions. There is an order in the chapter book for re-casting it, dated 1603. The fifth Inscribed "Fox," after Bishop Fox, who was Bishop of Exeter from 1487 to 1491 and who is sail to have given the Cathedral the curious clock and the great Exeter bell which is in the North tower. The "Keble" bell has the date of 1729, in which yearit wasre-cast. And the second and third of ten miles. bear the dates of 1616 and 1658.

The best small peal of bells in England is said to be at Castle Camps in Cambridgeshire. Denison tells us that no good neal of eight bells, or even a single good bell of thirty hundred weight, has been cast with. in the last thirty years; and the art of cas.

ting very large bells say of four tons or six foot in diameter, had perished long before that. There has been a good bell of that size cast within the last century and a half at least. That of Saint Paul's which had to be cast twice over and was made in 1709. though better than any other of the later ones, is not generally considered a really good bell; for though the art of bell-founding survived the other Gothic arts for several centuries, it has of late sunk very low. The tone of a bell depends conjointly on the diameter, the height, and the thickness, other things being equal. The shape of bells in different countries, being more evlindrical or conical in one than another

The tenor bell at Sherborne was the gift of Cardinal Wolsey, who at one time was rector of Limington, near Elchester. This bell was the smallest of the seven bells mported from Tournay, and distributed by him among the cathedrals of Lincoln. Exeter, whord, etc. It is called Great form, after its donor, and has the following legend attached to it-

"By Wolsey's gift I measure time for all To mirth, to grief, to church, I serve to call. It was re-cast in Elizabeth's time, but has now fallen out of repair. The seventh bell at Sherborne is called he Lady's Bell. Most of the old bells in England have some levend or inscription belonging to thom. In a tower at St. Peter's at Rome are five bells, most of which are inscribed with Litin verses explanatory of some historical facts—one was hung in 1258, during the ministry of a certain parson; another was cast in 1358; after the lightning had destroyed the former bells. In the church of the Jesuits at Rome, there was a bell brought from England, which was inscrib-

"Facta fuit. A Dom. 1400 die. vi. mensis Septembris Suncta Barbara ora pro nobis. On two old bells in England are also these Latin inscriptions-"Hose campana Margaretta est nominata." And on the other bell in the same place are these words -"In multis annis resouet campana Jo-

A bell was presented by King Edward III. of England to St. Stephen's Chapel, which, according to the inscription upon it. was 32,000 weight. The largest bell in all France is said to be the one hung in St. Mary's church at Rouen, and it has this

"Je suis nominée George d'Amboise. Oni plus que trente six milpoise, Et si qui bien me poisera, Quarante mil y trouvera.

This bell was presented to the church by deorge, Archbishop of Rouen, and the tower containing it was equally famous. A great scarcity of oil prevailed in the diocese, so that there was hardly enough for Leut, and the archbishop permitted the inhabitants to use butter on each paying sixpence for the indulgence. Supposing his overcout to contain pins, he took it off, but the pains ncreased, extending from one shoulder to the other across the whole back. They were accompanied by pricking sensations and sharp, shooting pains, such as a wasp orawling over the skin, and stinging all the time, might produce. The pain next assumed the character of a burn, and M. de Saussure actually fancied that his flannel waistcoat had caught fire, and was about to throw off the rest of his clothes, when his attention was arrested by a sound remind ing him of the reverberations of a tuningork. These sounds came from the sticks which, resting against the cairn, sang loudly, emitting a sound like that of a kettle the water of which is about to boil. this lasted about four or five minutes. CHLORODYNE IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE. CAUTIONS. - Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLIRODYNE : that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, being the Inventor was deliberately untrue, which he regretted had been sworn to. Lument ospital Physicians of Lundon stated that irr. J. Collis Browne was the discoverer of t blorodyne; that they pr scribe it largely, and mean no other than Dr. Browne's .- See Times,

The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using

DR. COLLIS BROWNE'S Chlorodyne.

This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, reli ves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions and stimulates hearthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opinin. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite: I housands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while Medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases; -Diseases in which it is found eminently useful-Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoza, Colies, Coughs. Asthma, theumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS. The Right tion. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholem was thiorodyne. -See Linicel, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq ; late inspector of Hospitals, Bombay, "Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my r storation to bealth, after 18 months' severe suffering, and when piher remedies

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, report (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered, Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris,cannot speak too highly of Ur. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne : I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866 .-Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and: Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in holera,-" So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too for ibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." Beware of spurious and dangerous compounds sold measurement of goods, exchanges, &c. have been selected from those constantly in use among the foreign merchants in China. Those for calculating the prices of tea in dollars or pence have been copied from the more extended tables, by the kind permission of the author, P. Loureiro, Esq. The last section of the same chapter, on Movements in Bullion," has been prepared and furnished for the Guide by Patrick R. Harper, Esq., of the Commercial Bank of India at Hongkong, who has had much ex-perience in the exchanges and movements of the precious metals in Eastern Asia. "The Appendix of Sailing Directions has been reprinted from the China Pilot.

With short interruptions, the coasts from Singapore to Hakodadi are all described in t; and for the Chinese coasts, the Directions have been improved by the insertion of the Chinese characters for the names of all places that could be ascertained." Orders may be sent through any of the China Mail Agents, or direct to
